Dear Editor,

This article aimed to provide the concept patterns obtained from the observations of a specialist in emergency medicine (EM) in the work setting. Some of these concepts in EM practice are expressed below.

Leadership

Emergency physicians (EPs) are leaders of emergency departments (ED) who have to manage operational issues affecting the patients, crews, nurses, and wards as well as confusing situations, manage the team's efforts, and decide the right treatment for each patient. Therefore, seconds are critical, and it is the advantage of this field which is not present in other medical courses. The EP can save patients' lives in just a few seconds. Correct decision-making is among the skills each EP should acquire. There are several treatment options with a range of different possible outcomes for each patient. A misleading choice may have irreparable consequences because the death and life of the patient is the issue [2].

There are billions of galaxies filled with billions of stars. Each star has the potential to have planets orbiting it. Does life exist on some of those planets? In this module, students discover how scientists find planets and other astronomical bodies through the wobble (also known as Doppler spectroscopy or radial-velocity) and transit methods. Students compare zones of habitability around different star types, discovering the zone of liquid water possibility around each star type. Finally, students explore how scientists use spectroscopy to learn about atmospheres on distant planets.
